Joe Beach completed ESI's Advanced Executive Protection resident training and the academic components of AEP Program in May, 2001 that entitled him to his certification as Protection Specialist, C.P.S. Joe also completed his Associate Degree in Criminal Justice with ESI in August 2002....Joe was one of the last ESI graduates to qualify under ESI's degree program. Throughout this time he worked part-time in the security field doing asset protection, background investigations, estate security and commercial security while remaining active member of the Vance International mobile security task force.

Shortly after Joe graduated in August at the age of 22, he began a promising career for a well-known Fortune 100 company in Seattle performing asset security, personal security, estate security and commercial security. In this position he received commendations for service above and beyond the call of duty. He gained valuable experience in risk evaluation in terms of instantaneous personal threat assessment human behavior analysis and has become an invaluable asset in on-the-spot-situational control. He has long manifested a special ability to instantaneously ascertain individual and group intentions in street settings with an uncanny accuracy even when the more naive individuals present perceived no such intentions. This has made him a valuable protection resource. should a threat escalate, Joe has a cadre of martial arts skills at his disposal that he would rather avoid using, but they are available to him should the need arise. He would strongly work to diffuse a threat long before it would escalate. In addition, Joe has completed his EMT and CPR/AED certifications.
